

YOU ARE INVITED TO...

Restoring Habitat in the Chesapeake Bay Region of the Atlantic Flyway

A FREE workshop for landowners and those who work with them to enhance and protect the value of open space.

Thursday, September 28, 2017
9AM-2PM

Pickering Creek Audubon Center

Learn the value of large-tract habitat restoration projects to birds, wildlife and the Chesapeake Bay. Explore restoration methods like warm season grass meadows, forest buffers and especially restored wetlands. See on the ground examples at Pickering Creek Audubon Center. The workshop will include presentation materials that can be used to share information with other interested persons or community groups. Resource materials will also include contact information for technical and financial assistance required to initiate a restoration project. Lunch provided.

To register, email Mark Scallion at mcallion@audubon.org or call Pickering Creek Audubon Center at 410.822.4903 by September 22nd. Please indicate dietary preference when registering.
